

01. 갖추다 ☆

To apply to this company, you need to have documents including a self-introduction, school report cards, etc.

02. 경력

I have career experience working in a hotel from before I worked at the company where I work now.

03. 경쟁력 ☆

If you want to get a good job, certification is important, but you have to build your own competitiveness through various experiences.

04. 고용(하다)

If you're hired by a company, you receive a salary and are treated as an employee.

05. 구하다 ☆

These days, a lot of young people go to the city, so it's difficult to find people to work in farming villages.

06. 긴장하다

When I had my interview, I was so nervous that I couldn't answer the questions and stumbled over my words.

07. 등용(하다)

During the Joseon Dynasty, the "Gwageo" test was used to appoint talented workers for the country.

EXAM TIP ▲

Let's review similar words that appear on exams.

• 고용

e.g. 외국 회사와 중요한 회의가 있어서 통역사를 고용했다. We had an important meeting with a foreign company, so we hired an interpreter.

• 등용

e.g. 회사는 능력이 있고 동료들이 좋아하는 사람을 관리자로 등용했다. The company appointed as manager someone who is talented and well liked by their colleagues.

Both words mean to choose a person, but "고용" means to choose a person and pay them, while "등용" refers to hiring and appointing a talented person.

08. 따다

I got computer certification in preparation for getting a job at the company I want to work at.

09. 리더십

In the job interview, I introduced how I displayed leadership as president of a college club.

10. 면접

Usually, when you have a job interview, you have to wear a suit.

11. 문의(하다) ☆

I really wanted to apply for the company so I called them directly and inquired about their recruitment plans for new employees.

12. -별

As skills that are required differ by job, you have to look into it carefully.

13. 복장

When you go to an interview, your clothes must be neat.

14. 뽑다

A lot of companies choose people based mainly on their skills via interviews.

15. 살리다

I graduated with a degree in Korean language and literature, and I used my major to get a job at a publishing company.

16. 신입

When you first start at a company, you receive education for new employees.

EXAM TIP ▲

"신입 사원 (new recruit)" is a person who just got a job at a company, while "신입생 (freshman or new student)" refers to a new student who entered a school.

17. 양성(하다)

All employees should receive training the company does once each year to develop new technologies.

18. 여부

I checked whether or not the company was hiring this year by email.

19. 연수

Once a year, our company selects an excellent employee and sends them abroad for training.

20. 이력서

Usually, you need to write your contact info, school, experience at jobs you previously worked, etc. on a résumé.

21. 인력

Our company decided to hire more workers because our manpower was insufficient for the work.

22. 인재

Lately, young talents are graduating and starting their own businesses right away, and many are succeeding.

EXAM TIP ▲

Let's learn the difference between the words “인력” and “인재.”

- 인력 Manpower: Used when emphasizing the labor of the person who works.

e.g. 산업에서 가장 중요한 요소는 인력이다. In industry, the most important element is manpower.

- 인재 Talent: Used when indicating having the ability to do a certain job.

e.g. 그 사람은 똑똑하고 리더십도 있는 훌륭한 인재다. She's a remarkable talent, smart and with leadership too.

23. 일자리

Many people try to find a stable job.

24. 입사(하다)

I quit just half a year after joining the company because the work didn't suit my aptitude.

25. 자격

Professor Kim saw that the student's qualifications were sufficient and decided to write her a letter of recommendation.

26. 정규직

I interned at this company when I was a college student, then graduated and applied, and was accepted as a permanent employee.

27. 조건

When looking for a job, you have to think about several conditions such as your salary, aptitude, prospects, etc.

28. 지원(하다)¹

The application documents for joining this company are a CV, school report cards, and certifications.

29. 창출(하다)

This company plans to invest in new businesses to create jobs.

30. 채용(하다)

This year, because of the global recession, a lot of companies decided not to hire new employees.

BACKGROUND KNOWLEDGE ▲

Let's learn about open recruitment at Korean companies.

In Korea, “공개 채용 (open recruitment)” is often shortened to “공채.” There are different kinds of open recruitment, like open recruitment for new employees or for experienced employees, and the process is ordinarily carried out in 3 steps: screening submitted documents, an aptitude test, and an interview.

31. 추천(하다)

My professor recommended import/export work to me, saying it would suit my aptitude.

32. 취업(하다)

Lately, college students prepare a lot in order to get a job at a good company.

33. 파견(하다)

Our company's international marketing team has a lot of employees who have been dispatched to work in other countries.